S. K. Larsen, of Stony Plain, counted 76 kernels in one head of wheat and 85 in another, both grown by himself this season. The wheat is of a new variety known as the St. Louis valley wheat. Mr. Larsen left a bunch of heads on view at this office.

He will give a full statement as to his mission and its results to the town council at its next meeting. He is accompanied by Mr. Jennings, late city engineer of Toronto, who comes with a view of investigating as to the proposed electric railway from the railway station to Edmonton.

Henry Nelson, who has been mining on the Saskatchewan this summer, returned to Edmonton on Friday last. He left here the latter part of April and before high water came in June he had made $187. He was down as far as Battleford, prospecting on the way down, and made his highest pay a short distance below Fort Pitt, where he made as high as $10 a day on one bar. He has taken out in all about $250 this season. There are a large number of miners at work all along the river. Mr. Nelson leaves for the Athabasca in a few days where he will stop during the winter.
Rev. J. B. Matheson, Church of England missionary at Union Lake Indian agency, near Fort Pitt, arrived last week to purchase supplies for his mission. He was accompanied by several Indians from the reserve who are building flat boats with which to take down the supplies. Mr. Matheson reports the Indians of the Union Lake agency as being in a very prosperous condition, having sold a large number of fat cattle this season to Gordon & Ironside, besides supplying themselves and some of the adjoining reserves with beef. They have also grown enough grain for their own use this year, so that they are really self-sustaining. Their success is very greatly due to the exertions of their agent, G. G. Mann. Mr. Matheson was a resident of Edmonton in the 70's and early 80's, and farmed for some years at Sturgeon River, after which he went to British Columbia and then entered the mission service.

Judge Scott will arrive on to-night's train from Red Deer.

The agricultural implement warehouse formerly occupied by Geo. Hutton adjoining the fire hall was fitted up and occupied by them for the occasion.

A small piece of coarse gold was found last week on the bar at the Miner's flat by Mike Rowe an old miner on the Saskatchewan. This is the first piece of coarse gold ever found on the Saskatchewan, but it is to be hoped that it will not be the last. It was found in a working below the usual depth, and was caught accidentally under the blanket in the sluice box. It would not catch on the blanket like the fine gold. Mr. Rowe will now look for more of it.

A very interesting pamphlet on the Indian missions of the Presbyterian church in the Northwest has been published. It comprises thirty small pages, but in that space is condensed a very great deal of sound argument and practical information. The pamphlet is the work of Rev. A. B. Baird, founder of the Presbyterian mission work at Edmonton and now professor in Manitoba college. A short history is given of the principal missionaries of the Presbyterian church to the Indians and of the missions which they established. The reason for the Indian mission work is given as follows: "It is necessary to make prominent at the beginning the fact that the relations in which we stand to the Indians are different from those which connect us with any other heathen. We owe the gospel to them as to others, but in addition they live within the bounds of our land, they are wards of our government, and the moral and social ideals that prevail among them must have a bearing by no means remote on the political and social life of Canada. Our young and growing nation cannot harbor within its borders solid masses of heathenism, such as the Indian reserves are, without suffering the contamination which must come from the peculiar moral and social ideals entertained in these communities. Possibly we affect to despise their barbarism and their dirt, but we are influenced by it more or less."

CATTLE.

The large shipments of cattle from almost all parts of Manitoba and the Territories which have been made to England this year, mark a new era in the development of the West. Shipments have been made on a moderately large scale in previous years, but not until this season has the business reached a point of development which places cattle raising for the English market easily at the head of the productive features of the agricultural industry in the West and particularly the Far West. It has settled the question as to the possibility of the trade and its profitable nature, both for the producer and the dealer. The farmer or rancher realizes a price that pays him well—pays him so that he declares himself satisfied—and no doubt yields a profitable return on the investments and risks of the dealer as well as giving a satisfactory earning to the railway company. This is it remembered has been the all around result in the face of the unfortunate regulation compelling the slaughter of the cattle on arrival at the British port. With that regulation abolished as it is to be hoped it will be soon, and with the improved facilities for handling that will no doubt come into existence with the increase of the trade, it is fair to suppose that these advantages will in the future balance or more than balance possibly less favorable conditions at home, than have prevailed in this favorable year. It has been demonstrated that the best market England offers is within easy reach of that product which the West can supply to better advantage than any other, and which the Far West can supply to better advantage than any other part of the world; a product that can pay the cost of transport to market and still allow the producer a good round unquestioned and unquestionable profit. The train load after train load of fat steers which have been going forward this year over the C. P. R. and its branches from the foothills of the Rockies, the Cypress hills, the lower Saskatchewan and the eastern Assiniboia, proves that the West has found its feet financially, just as Manitoba did when its first great export of wheat was made, and that hence forward the man who wishes to make money in the West has one pursuit definitely open to him, success in which will depend upon himself; for the conditions of nature and markets are on his side, and the long railway haul is not a bar. Even in the remotest corner of the Northwest the world's market is wide open to him.

That is one side of the question; and the other side is that of all the many train loads of cattle which have been purchased for the British market in the West this season not one hoof came from the settlements immediately surrounding Edmonton. Here is a trade, the most profitable the country offers, in which the natural conditions of the Edmonton district would enable it to compete on most favorable terms, and yet in which we did not take part to the extent of one dollar. It is true that a certain amount of cattle have been sold here, some of which will ultimately find their way to the British market, but the price received was not the price that will be paid for the cattle ready for shipment, and the difference represents a loss to the Edmonton farmer. Indeed many of these cattle will never be fit for shipment and wherever they may be, must be disposed of at local markets. Instead of Edmonton leading in the export cattle trade as it should it only comes in at the very tail of the hunt, benefitting through the action of others instead of through its own.

The fact of the matter is that while other sections of the Territories less favored by nature than we are, have without any very definite idea of immediate profit been steadily improving their herds of cattle year after year, we have been content to a very large extent to get along with the old style of animal, trusting to our luxurious pasturage and abundant hay to make up for physical deficiencies. But when the time arrived that cattle must be shipped from the Territories it is found that the well-bred cattle of other sections can be shipped at a handsome profit while ours are simply not suited for the purpose, and we are consequently out of it. Last spring when Gordon & Ironsides' agent came to Edmonton to buy, a very short visit satisfied him that there were not enough cattle of the kind he wanted in the district to make it worth his while to start buying; and yet he went over 100 miles east by trail to Cinnamon Bro's ranch on the Vermillion to buy 40 head, because they were the kind he wanted. During the following summer months until Mr. Lineham made his extensive purchases of young cattle to stock his range in the south beef was in very slow demand here. As long as the local demand would consume the surplus beef of the district it did not matter so much what the cattle were like as long as they were young and in good condition, but when cattle have increased so that there is an inevitable surplus, we must produce the kind of cattle that are wanted for shipment or we are producing to lose a profit that we should have.

There is just one thing for the farmers of this district to do in this matter and that is to start doing now what people in other parts of the country have been doing for the past five or ten years, that is introduce well-bred sires. This has been done systematically on the ranges of Southern Alberta ever since ranching on a large scale began there, and it is still being carried on. Without the introduction of new and good blood the range cattle would necessarily deteriorate, while it is a well known fact that they are far superior in weight and fineness to the cattle of this district. With plenty of well-bred stock close to our doors from which to draw, the process of improving our stock would not be seriously expensive, but it would certainly require time and trouble and money, and the man who best applies his time and money will have the best results. One part of the necessity of shipping only heavy animals is that the freight across the ocean is paid for by space, not by pounds. In this way a small scrub would cost as much to ship from Montreal as a large thoroughbred, making a difference per pound in freight in favor of the thoroughbred that would equal a fair, or even a handsome, profit on the animal. The other part is that the English market demands the best beef that can be supplied, such as only thoroughbreds can furnish. For a first class animal there is a low rate of freight and a first class market, while for a scrub the freight is high and the market poor. That is why there is a brisk demand for the one and no demand at all for the other. Of all the breeds of cattle the Durham is undoubtedly the best to raise for shipment, being larger and having heavier hindquarters than other varieties. Some smaller breeds find favor on the ranges because they are harder than the Durhams, but in this district where winter shelter is, or ought to be, always provided and feed is plentiful the Durham is undoubtedly the best animal to raise. Beside where dairying is a consideration the Durhams are better milkers than most of the other beef breeds.

NORTHWEST ASSEMBLY.

"Territorial Exhibition, $5,000."
Opposition to this vote was expected, and when Mr. Ross rose to explain its expediency the committee was all attention. After detailing the circumstances under which a similar vote was given last year, he gave account of the manner of spending. A portion of the exhibition money had been devoted to advertising in Northwest papers, to extra buildings (for which the Regina vote of $10,000 had been insufficient) to completing the speeding track on the grounds, etc.

Mr. Ross said it was a fact that a deficit in the exhibition finances now existed. The very success of the fair was largely responsible for the deficit. Whether there had been extravagance, as charged, he did not know. He did not think anyone could know until the accounts were audited. In any case that did not affect the assembly. Another thing their vote of $5,000 was partly expended on was fodder for stock, regarding which his honor had accepted the advice of the exhibition advisory committee. When it was considered that 1,800 head of stock had been exhibited, it would be seen this one item alone must be large. Mr. Ross said it was easy to point out where saving might have been effected after the fair was over. It was more difficult to conduct an immense fair of that kind with the economy that would be satisfactory. He was free to say that when the fair was first spoken of he was opposed to the assembly giving a grant to it with their limited funds, but now that it had been held, and turned out so successful, and when it was further taken into account that a very great proportion of the money spent upon it in buildings, prizes, etc., was spent right in the Northwest, by which the people of the Northwest were benefited, he thought it nothing but right that this further sum should be given. The assembly had before spent money on objects no more worthy. They spent $4,000 to advertise the Territories at the World's fair in Chicago; they gave another $1,400 towards the Imperial Institute. At any rate those were objects from which the people drew no direct return while from this exhibition they had secured $16,000 in prizes alone, and it formed an advertisement of the resources of our country the like of which could have been made in no other way. With the sum now asked, the bonus given by the assembly would amount to $10,000, and he felt assured the fair had been worth more than $10,000 to the country. An impression seemed to prevail that the vote was asked to secure possession of the fair grounds. Such was a mistake. Title to the grounds, he believed, would rest in the crown, and they would at all times be available for Territorial fair purposes. The vote was a straight bonus. It was only with the money voted by this house that the house had anything to do, he trusted that hon. gentlemen who had remarks to make would confine themselves to that.

Mr. Oliver said the house had seemed satisfied to be out $40,000, and he supposed it would be satisfied to be out $5,000 more, notwithstanding Mr. Ross had utterly failed to show that the fair had been worth anything like the amount it cost. He did not have the hardihood to claim for it even ordinary good management. The executive resorted to such extreme pleas, such declamatory hysterics, to justify the loss of $40,000 that he wondered greatly at their cheerfulness in asking this vote. No account was given of the manner of spending the vote of last year. We are short in our funds for necessities. We are $13,000 short in our roads and bridges fund, and by the hon. gentleman's own admission, we are some thousands of dollars short in our school funds. Being in that position, we cannot afford to throw away $5,000 on an object to supplement a vote already given which was lavish in its generosity. I have nothing to say against the exhibition, or those who planned it, or those who carried it out. The hon. gentleman opposite was the one who virtually made charges of extravagance. But the $25,000 given to this exhibition by the Dominion was, I claim, money which belonged to this assembly. We really contributed that. The fair has been bonused to the extent of $40,000, and surely such a successful show ought to have made a few thousands out of receipts and entries. I think it will become these gentlemen, under all the circumstances, to ask for this $5,000.

Mr. Haultain thought Mr. Oliver was the only man in the committee who gave exhibitions of hysterics. It seemed to be chronic with him. He could assure Mr. Oliver that it was not epidemic with the executive. Mr. Oliver was profuse and emphatic in his statements. The one that the Northwest contributed the $25,000 Dominion vote to the exhibition was on par with the one that Mr. Daly did not give $27,000 on account of relief. They lacked in one important particular—they lacked fact. The $25,000 given to the fair no more belonged to the Territories than the votes for Indians and police given every year. The money asked now would go towards paying legitimate accounts for honest services rendered the exhibition.

Dr. Brett supported the item. He felt there was a tacit understanding last year that $5,000 would be voted this year.

Mr. Lineham would not admit the understanding. If he made a promise of that kind he would like to know it, for he liked to keep his promises. But he did not know he made any of that kind. Mr. Ross had made a good speech in behalf of the fair, but he (Mr. Lineham) did not think Mr. Ross believed what he said. Anyway there was a marked difference between his earnestness of the past three days and his jocularity to-night. Mr. Lineham thought the fair was too dear a whistle.

Mr. Speaker thought there was a tacit understanding last year. In fact it was only on that understanding he had voted the $5,000 then, for he thought the sum altogether too small.

Mr. Insinger told Mr. Bannerman that an hon. gentleman's statement that an understanding existed was proof of it in that house. He (Mr. Insinger) was certainly a party to the understanding. He would vote now for the $5,000 although not with any satisfaction. He had felt opposed to the project at first, but when it was bound to materialize he considered that while its success might not be any great benefit to the country, when measured by the cost, still its failure was bound to be very disastrous.

On division the item carried, those voting against being Messrs. Bulyea, Critchley, Fearon, Oliver, Bannerman, Lineham.

The whole estimates were passed without amendment. At 12:20 o'clock the committee rose, reported the resolutions, which were read a first and second time and concurred in, and the house adjourned.

REGINA, Sept. 24th, '95.

Mr. Oliver reported that the committee on education had examined the papers referred to them respecting the organization and the reorganization of several school districts, and begged to report that there had been considerable delay in the correspondence between the department and several school districts, but they had received satisfactory assurance from the head of the department that such steps would be taken as to prevent like delays in future.

The report was received.
Mr. Meyers moved, seconded by Knowling, pose of obtaining expression of the voters of the Territories as to the advisability of the Dominion parliament passing an act prohibiting the sale, importation or manufacture of intoxicants in said Territories: Therefore in the opinion of this assembly it is desirable that the Parliament of Canada be memorialized to cause a plebiscite on the question to be taken at the time of voting at the next general election of representatives in said parliament."

Mr. Myers said that the result of the report of the recent commission on the liquor traffic was not satisfactory notwithstanding its large expense. He believed his motion voiced the opinion of the large majority of the people of the Territories.

Mr. Oliver said that so far as his knowledge of the temperance party went, and he was of their number, he did not think there was any strong feeling in favor of the plebiscite (laughter). He did not think temperance people had any greater desire to pose as actors in a farce than any other people, and if a plebiscite was taken which gave them an immense majority, and the getting of that majority was not followed by any action, he did not see that there was any particular gain to that particular cause in that particular action.

Mr. Haultain, as a member of the temperance branch as distinct from the teetotal branch of the general temperance party (laughter), did not think the house should be called upon to ask the Dominion government to do what they could do themselves. Unlike the provinces, the Territories had power to prohibit the traffic in drink, and also to take a plebiscite. He did not believe in that particular form of obtaining the will of the people.

Mr. Knowling said he considered the motion largely represented the views of the people of the Territories. If a plebiscite were taken he believed it would show the Dominion that the Northwest was in favor of prohibition, and would be of great moral support to the rest of the Dominion regarding prohibition.

The motion carried by a vote of 15 to 13. In committee on schools, Mr. Bulyea moved to raise school age from five to six, contending no benefit was gained by sending a child to school at five.

Mr. Oliver believed with Mr. Bulyea, that after seven the child was sure to have educational advantages open to it, no good came of sending it to school before seven years of age; but in this country there was danger of some children never having these advantages; and schooling from five to seven was better than none at all.

Upon the clause constituting the council of public instruction.

Mr. Maloney moved that the advisory members of the council (two Catholics and two Protestants) be allowed to vote. Only Maloney, Boucher and Clinksill voted for the amendment, which was lost.

In committee of the whole, the game Ordinance amending bill again received attention. It was agreed that the season for shooting grouse, partridge, pheasant or prairie chicken shall be from 15th September to 15th December; and the open season for deer from 1st October to 1st February.

EDMONTON EXHIBITION.

The fall show of the Edmonton agricultural society which was held on Friday and Saturday last was highly favored, as to weather, but the number of exhibits in almost all the important classes was smaller than usual. The principal exception was in horses, and especially young horses, which showed up in larger numbers than ever of excellent quality, proving that this is a good country in which to raise horses and also demonstrating the advantage of the importation of good sires which has taken place within the past three years. Owing to a misunderstanding in regard to the day upon which the cattle were to be shown, there was only a small exhibit, many exhibitors being under the impression that as in former years the cattle were to be exhibited on the second day. In some of the horse classes were the favorites and some excellent specimens were shown. There were also some good sheep. The poultry show was small, but the birds exhibited were apparently well bred. The livestock exhibit was on the grounds adjoining the curling rink. The poultry was shown in the rink.

The display of vegetables, grain and grasses was on the ground floor of the fire hall, and if the exhibits were not as numerous as last year the quality was more equally excellent. D. Ross had an excellent collection of vegetables, and M. McCauley showed a collection of over 40 varieties of wild native grasses most tastefully arranged. A sack of splendid field peas showed that that grain may profitably be added to the list of farm products of the district. The wheat and oats shown were excellent.

W. T. Henry & Co. occupied an ample space with a display of goods' furnishings which would have done credit to a city.

C. Gallagher had a show case in which were arranged samples of prepared meats such as spiced roll, sausage, bologna, head cheese, roll bacon, etc.

Jas. Dale displayed a number of the styles of the Singer sewing machine to great advantage.

The kitchen and dairy products, fancy work, flowers, etc. were displayed in the council chamber, and although there was no showing of variety of former years, there was none of the high hazard, show any way on chance of a prize idea, in evidence. There was a good competition in butter in all classes, but particularly in crock butter as before the time of year. Cheese was conspicuous by its absence except as to one sample of homemade. Jam, pickles and head were of excellent quality and the competition was keen. The comparatively smaller exhibit of paintings and fancy work was due to a large extent to the rule which barred out articles exhibited in previous years, but the exhibits averaged better than formerly. There was a splendid display of flowering plants such as the exhibition had never before been favored with.

Exhibits at present occupying the exhibition buildings will hardly be removed before the work of demolition will be commenced in preparation for splendid new buildings which it is intended to erect. This colonial fair will be run by the Montreal Exposition company, in conjunction with another company of capitalists, and will be under the immediate direction of S. C. Stevenson. Additional ground will be acquired at once and handsome buildings erected to house the immense array of exhibits which is expected. Plans are being prepared for the directors, preliminary to their decision as to the extent of building operations. Exhibits at present in the Colonial Institute in London have been secured as a nucleus. India, Australia, South Africa, and most of the small colonies will be represented. The opening of the exhibition is set for May 24th, and the closing date for October 12th. A bonus of $250,000 is looked for from the Dominion and provincial governments.

MUSIC IN THE PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH.

(BY AGEEVILE.)

The members of the Presbyterian church choir having introduced a new organ into the church at considerable expense, have set about to clear off the debt by subscriptions from the members of the congregation and their own musical efforts. A number of weeks ago the committee brought before the choir Farmer's Oratorio "Christ and His Soldiers" as being a work suitable for study and also with a view to giving a production of the same in aid of the organ fund. After a good deal of harp practice the grand event was brought off on Friday, Sept. 27th, before the largest audience which has ever been together in any church in town. The first part of the programme was of a very high order and opened with selections on the new organ by F. H. Andrews, the talented organist of All Saints' church, followed by the choir, "I heard the voice of Jesus say," by Miss Cookson, the principal soprano, who, in the possession of a very fine voice, gave a capital rendering of the solo allotted to her. Sullivan's "Lost Chord," was the next number and W. Clark did ample justice to this fine air on his cornet. The quartette from Mendelssohn's "Elijah," "O come every one that thirsteth," was given by Misses Cookson and Rogers and Messrs. McIntyre and Randall the leads in their respective parts in the choir. This was the grandest piece of music on the programme and with a little more attention to the conductor's baton while at practice, the ladies and gentlemen who form the party will hold their own with any quartette party in our eastern cities. The pianoforte selections by Alex. McCauley were a musical treat and his masterly execution was sufficient to predict for this rising young pianist a most successful career. In the aria "It is enough" from "Elijah," Mr. Randall attempted a very difficult task, and deserves credit for the manner in which he performed it. The first part of what gave promise of an excellent programme was brought to a close by the choir singing the anthem "The Radiant Morn." This lovely piece of music decided that although the singing was a little unsteady, due no doubt to over anxiety, the oratorio about to be given would be done ample justice to. "Christ and His Soldiers," is divided into two difficult pieces. The first (The Life of Christ), represents our Saviour's memorable words "Suffer little children," which was sung as a recitative chorus, then the subject takes up the life, death, resurrection and ascension of Christ. The second part (The life of a Christian) opens with another recitative chorus "Be thou faithful" followed by the introductory march on the organ and piano which elicited hearty plaudits. Then the part shows us the young Christian first "awaking out of sleep" at the "thrilling voice" of the advent summons, and after being enlisted as "Soldiers of Christ" passing through peril, toil and pain, he joins the great multitude "Round the Throne at God's right hand." This last chorus was sung with a pervasion and vim seldom seen in our western choruses. Regarding the singing of the choir, nothing but praise can be bestowed, and where all sang so well, it would be difficult to select any of the parts of having excelled, in the blending of voice and the attention to light and shade, the choir was exceedingly happy. The solo work was in capital hands. Miss Richardson being possessed of a nice voice, alto she seemed suffering from a slight cold, sang "Hark the glad sound." The Solo "By Jesus' Grave," was given by Miss Rogers in a very feeling manner, her rich although voice being brought out with fine effect in the passage "Deep in the rock's sepulchral shades." Miss Adamson, who was a little nervous at the opening of her solo, has a most beautiful mezzo-soprano voice and won the hearts of her auditors by her tasteful rendering of "Our Blest Redeemer." Mr. Douglas sang the solo, "Rock of Ages," with fine effect, the piano passages being very carefully given. The heavy part of the soprano solos fell on Miss Cookson, who performed all her solos with telling effect. Much credit is due R. McIntyre for his capital singing of "When I survey the wondrous cross," and to A. G. Randall who fully sustained his reputation as a soloist of a very high order. His training of the choir deserves the highest praise.

The Rev. Mr. McQueen and his session are to be congratulated on having with them a party of ladies and gentlemen who can organize such an entertaining musical treat, much of the credit being due to the untiring efforts of J. W. Kelly, the genial sec-treas. of the choir. I hope now that the choir have opened out with oratorio we will hear them very soon again in something even of a higher standard than Farmers' "Christ and His Soldiers."
